CLERGY REFLECTION: Dear friends in Christ, we see in today's readings that God's mercy and generosity go far beyond what we expect. God invites everyone to turn to him, no matter how late that person may come. God's ways are not like ours. Where people see boundaries and restrictions, God offers grace without measure.

In the first reading we are encouraged to turn to God sincerely and call upon Him. And those who are living in sinful ways are urged to abandon them, because God is willing to forgive generously rather than holding our sins against us. This is why God's thoughts are not your thoughts!

Paul encourages Christians to conduct themselves in a manner that reflects their faith in Christ. In all we do, we should put Christ first and serve others faithfully.

In the Gospel, we see that jealousy in life can not promote anybody, rather it will block your success. God's grace is a gift, not something we can earn by comparing our work to others. We may feel that someone deserves less because they came late to the church/did less work. But God is generous and has the right to show mercy and favour to anyone. Therefore don't be jealous or unhappy when God blesses others, rather be grateful to God.
~ Fr. Emmanuel
